PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Dear Friends of the East Palo Alto Kids Foundation:

Looking back over the 2007/08 year, I am very pleased with the contribution we've made to improve education in East Palo Alto and eastern Menlo Park. EPAK has worked diligently to narrow the funding gap between what is needed to provide a quality education in the expensive Bay Area and what is provided by the State of California. Here are some highlights from EPAK's most impressive year ever:

- ◆ 2007/08 was EPAK's best year for awarding grants. We awarded over 500 grants this year!
- ◆ EPAK had its most successful fundraising year, raising over $220,000. This includes many gifts from new EPAK supporters.
- ◆ EPAK continued its Special Projects Grant Program, in which we partner with a school to target a large project and seek funding for that project.
- ◆ For the first time ever, EPAK awarded new teachers $200 grants before the school year began. This made it possible for new teachers to set up an inviting and engaging classroom, as well as buy necessary materials for the first day of school.

EPAK will continue to fund teachers through our core Teacher Grants Program, and to identify compelling Special Projects for which to seek funding. On behalf of the students in East Palo Alto and eastern Menlo Park, thank you for investing in education!

Sincerely,

Tasha Castañeda, President

OUR MISSION

The East Palo Alto Kids Foundation (EPAK) is a community-based, all-volunteer organization whose mission is to promote academic success for students in East Palo Alto and eastern Menlo Park by providing cash grants directly to classroom teachers and other frontline educators.

EPAK secures and distributes contributions from individuals, corporations, service organizations and foundations to help those educating the children in the most direct and immediate way possible. Grant applications for up to $500 are accepted from teachers, resource specialists, and other teaching staff during the Fall and Spring of each school year.

EPAK recently launched a Special Projects Grant Program to address needs which impact more than a single classroom of students. EPAK actively identifies needs in the schools, as well as entertains proposals from teachers and principals in the Ravenswood City School District. Funding is sought after by EPAK for each project.

ABOUT US

ANNUAL REPORT 2007-2008

www.epak.org

EPAK is a private, 501(c)3 non-profit Foundation founded in 1993; all donations are tax-deductible. EPAK...

- ✓ Serves approximately 4,500 students from 13 schools in the district.
- ✓ Supports quality educational experiences through a variety of grants for literacy, science learning materials, math enrichment, musical instruments, computer-building components, field trips, physical education, and more.
- ✓ Awards grants to teachers through a selective application process. All teachers in the district are eligible to apply, including reading specialists, resource specialists, and other teaching staff who work directly with students in a classroom setting.
- ✓ Is governed by an all-volunteer Board of Directors, comprising retired and active Ravenswood teachers and members of the broad Silicon Valley community dedicated to providing quality education for all students.
- ✓ Addresses the serious educational funding gap that compromises our students' education, and its efforts have direct, tangible, and immediate impact.

OUR VISION

ANNUAL REPORT 2007-2008

www.epak.org

We believe...

...that all children should have an equal opportunity to learn.

Children from low-income families, where English may be a second language and health issues may be left untreated, face challenges that children in higher income, neighboring communities do not. A one-digit difference in zip code shouldn't make a difference in the quality of education. Through our grants, we help bridge the gap between state/local funding and district needs, giving these children greater opportunity to pursue their hopes and dreams.

...that a great education can make a difference for our children, our community, and our country.

If we don't provide a quality education to all our children, we are abandoning America's future. Kids who graduate from high school and go on to college will have more opportunities and higher incomes than those who don't. They are less likely to exhibit high-risk behaviors or suffer serious health problems. They will be more prepared for jobs in our global economy and will contribute more to their communities and to the economic health and competitiveness of our country.

...in a well-rounded education.

Competence in reading, science, math, and the arts, as well as participation in regular physical activity, helps students succeed in school and enrich their lives:

- Literacy is fundamental, helping children gain general knowledge in all subject areas in school and in adult life. Currently, at least 70 percent of our grants fund literacy.
- Success in math and science will create opportunities, especially in an increasingly technology-oriented world as represented by Silicon Valley. The country is facing a growing shortage of scientists and engineers—the solution starts in our schools.
- Study of the arts enhances young people's intellectual, personal, and social development, helping them learn more effectively in other areas of the school curriculum and serving as the basis for creativity and innovation.
- Investment in PE benefits children physically, mentally, emotionally, and socially. PE classes help prevent and fight childhood obesity and teach healthy habits that can last a lifetime.

...that teachers know best what is needed in the classroom.

They understand and are committed to the success of their students. By providing grants directly to teachers in the classroom, we are enabling them to address immediate needs. And by investing in our teachers, we show them that the community respects and values them, which can translate into better teacher retention.

UNDERSTANDING RAVENSWOOD

Addressing the Educational Funding Gap

There is a growing gap between public funding provided to the schools in the Ravenswood City School District, which encompasses East Palo Alto and eastern Menlo Park, and the resources needed to deliver a quality education to students. This educational funding gap severely undermines the hiring of experienced teachers, causes higher student-to-teacher ratios in the middle grades, and prevents the provision of appropriate classroom resources.

The Effects of Inadequate Resources

The funding shortage leaves striking gaps in the resources that are typically expected and required to support an effective educational environment. New teachers have very little support or materials for setting up a classroom. Classroom books are at a bare minimum; very few supplemental materials exist for remedial support. Many schools do not have functioning libraries or have libraries that fall dramatically below standards. There is a severe shortage of classroom materials such as pencils, notebooks, rulers and calculators. Field trips occur only if the teacher applies for external monies. Science experiments are uncommon due to a lack of materials. There is little support for typical enrichment activities, such as music and art. Sports equipment and play structures for recess and physical education are in short supply.

Student Population's Special Needs

www.epak.org

The needs of this predominantly low-income, ethnically diverse student population present special challenges to its schools. In 2007, the median household income in East Palo Alto was $51,535, compared to $150,700 in neighboring communities. Seventy-seven percent of students are eligible to receive Free or Reduced Price Lunch. Sixty-four percent of Ravenswood District's elementary and middle school student populations are English Language Learners (ELL). Many ELL students have difficulty academically; unfortunately, their parents often are unable to help them with their homework. A large number of families in this community are uneducated. 51% of parents did not complete high school. 96% did not complete college. Figure 1 illustrates the ethnic makeup of Ravenswood District students:

Figure 1

Source: www.ed-data.k12.ca.us

Lower API and Test Scores

Ravenswood schools are significantly underperforming compared to the surrounding districts, as measured by the state's Academic Performance Index (API). Whereas Palo Alto School District has an API of 912, and Menlo Park Elementary District has an API of 907, Ravenswood has an API of 633 and is in the bottom 5% of districts in San Mateo and Santa Clara counties. In 2007, Ravenswood District's standardized test scores showed a high percentage of students performing "Below Basic" and "Far Below Basic."

Fifty percent or more of the students, depending upon the school, are operating below grade level in math and language arts. The high school dropout rate is approximately 70 percent. Ravenswood is one of six districts that fall under the Department of Education's "intensive" category, which means they need close attention and support.

Teaching Experience

www.epak.org

Studies have shown that raising the quality of teaching has a direct impact on learning. The quantitative difference in total revenue sources per child makes a quantitative difference in terms of salaries the school district can afford, resulting in teachers with fewer years of experience on average. For all grades (K through 8), there are approximately 263 teachers in the Ravenswood School District, and eighty percent of the teachers have less than three years of teaching experience.

Closing the Gap

While public schools throughout California face similar gaps in funding, wealthier communities are able to restore the needed funding through financial contributions from local parent-funded foundations. For example, in nearby communities, the Palo Alto Partners in Education raised $2.1 million and the Menlo Park-Atherton Education Foundation raised $2 million in the 2007-2008 school year. Parent Teacher Associations (PTAs) raise millions of dollars - significantly narrowing or eliminating the funding gap in their schools. Individual parents contribute between $200 and $1,000 annually for teacher aides, materials, field trips, and science camps.

The reality is that East Palo Alto schools do not have the financial resources within their own parent community to address the funding gap. EPAK's goals are more modest than those of our sister communities, but the objectives are equally critical. To achieve these educational objectives, we need to rely upon help from the wider community.

As seen in Figure 2, EPAK raised $221,660 during the 2007-2008 school year. It was a fantastic year for us, but the total remains far less than the money raised and awarded in neighboring cities.

EPAK'S IMPACT

ANNUAL REPORT 2007-2008

www.epak.org

Since 1993, EPAK has awarded grants to teachers to provide for their students' most critical needs. These contributions improve the quality of the educational experience for these students and directly address the funding gap at the most basic level. In addition, these direct grants show that we support the teachers—who face significant challenges every day—in the important work they do. Until more structural changes are made to alleviate the growing gap existing today, each classroom grant, of up to $500 that EPAK provides, has a direct, tangible and immediate impact.

Special Projects Grant Program

In response to donors who wish to make an impact on more than a single classroom of students, EPAK launched a Special Projects Grant Program. Schools can submit a proposal for a school-wide project and EPAK will seek funding for that project.

Our first completed project was the opening of a newly restored middle school library for Edison McNair Academy. By providing the seed money, project management, and several dedicated volunteers, EPAK sparked a collaborative effort over the course of nine months that allowed Edison McNair Academy to revitalize a much-needed resource.

Edison McNair Library

The second project provided leveled books for Edison Brentwood Academy. Using leveled books is regarded as a highly successful way to bring fluency to young readers. They enable a teacher to match a child's current reading level with books to support subject matter and build students' reading skills to bring them up to grade level.

Leveled Book Room

The Ravenswood Child Development Center was also a Special Projects recipient. They will have workshops, parent participation days, and guest speakers throughout the year. Their goal is for parents to understand their role as partners and advocates for the education of their children.

The Stanford New School was also awarded a grant to create a leveled book room. These books will be used as a supplement to Language Arts textbooks. The leveled book room is open to teachers every day.

A class uses their new leveled books

Projects Currently in Need of Funding

*Library Rejuvenation and Literacy Program for Costano Elementary

ANNUAL REPORT 2007-2008

www.epak.org

Objectives of this program are to bring excitement and joy back to the Costano library, and to get students to read more at home, by providing new books, curriculum materials, periodicals, computers, and furniture. This project impacts what children can do at school and home to better learn.

Learning Software for James Flood Science and Technology Elementary School

Objectives of this program are to continue and expand the use of a proven program which enables teachers to customize curriculum for individual students. The Compass Learning software is working, but funds are needed to have all K-8 students benefit.

*State of the Art Junior High Book Room for Cesar Chavez Academy

Objectives of this program are to provide high interest material for students. The teachers will set up a reading room so that no more than six students can read materials that interest them with the support of a teacher, aide, or trained volunteer.

*Math Manipulatives for Willow Oaks

Objectives of this project are to supplement the current workbooks with TERC Investigation and the hands-on manipulatives that support the program. This program will help the students develop a more sophisticated understanding of math.

Costano Literacy and Library Restoration*

Objectives of this project are to restore the school library and provide high interest books for the students. Another element of this project is to provide books that students can take home and share with their families.

New Teacher Grants

EPAK would like to continue to give new teachers start up money for their classrooms. This money will be used to provide necessary materials for the beginning of the year.

EPAK needs your help to fund these projects and to make them a reality. If you would like to make a donation to EPAK in the amount of $5,000 or more toward one of these special projects, please contact Dianne Otterby at 650-323-0884, or email epakids@yahoo.com.

2007-2008 GRANTS

During the 2007-2008 school year, The East Palo Alto Kids Foundation awarded 527 classroom grants for a total of $258,075 for supplemental and enrichment materials and field trips. New teachers were awarded an additional $13,600 to begin their teaching career. Other special projects totaling $23,863 enabled further enrichment at several school sites.

The teachers and students have written numerous thank you letters to the foundation, thanking it for providing them an opportunity to enrich the curriculum and to enhance the instruction. Without you, the EPAK donors, this could never be accomplished. We appreciate your generous and continuing support.
